Required Texts: Conte, C. (2009). Advanced Techniques for Counseling and Psychotherapy.
Springer Publishing Company ISBN: 0826104509

Course Objectives:

You will be engaged in a series of readings and discussions designed to provide you with a broad overview of current approaches and techniques used in counseling and psychotherapy. Students will also be encouraged to utilize self-awareness and introspection throughout the course, in an attempt to help them understand how these concepts are essential for a healthy and ethical therapist.

Course requirements and expectations:

- You are expected to complete the assigned reading prior to the week that the discussion for this chapter begins class.
- You must observe the provisions of the Honor Code. Cooperative study and discussions are encouraged, but aids of any kind are not allowed during tests. When writing papers, you must be careful not to plagiarize others' work- use quotations if you are using direct words. If you do not cite properly, it is considered an act of plagiarism and is a potential honor code violation.
- Discussion Board participation: Throughout the summer session, I will begin a discussion board "thread" pertaining to the topic of the week. Each thread will open on Monday morning and will close the following Sunday at midnight, so it's important that you stay on schedule with the reading and check in to see if a new thread has been posted. Everyone is required to contribute at least once per discussion thread, though you are encouraged to also reply to other contributors, and participation will be graded on substance and depth. (In other words, simply stating "I agree" to someone else's contribution is not sufficient.) I give partial points, but am looking for well thought out discussion posts. A couple sentences is not sufficient to obtain full points. I will monitor these discussions closely for violations of discussion board etiquette (a good rule of thumb is "don't submit anything that you wouldn't say to someone's face") to ensure a safe, respectful online space for class members. If I deem a response inappropriate (e.g., rude, disrespectful), I will issue a public warning. If you receive 3 warnings, I will have no choice but to remove you from the discussion forum and you will receive whatever grade you have earned up to that point on the discussion board course requirement.
- Tests. Four (3) closed-notes, closed-text, timed, ONLINE, tests will be given. You will have one and a half hours to complete each test. The tests will be set to expire at midnight on the Sunday following the week that the test is scheduled.
- Final Paper- in lieu of a cumulative final exam, a final paper will be due. This is NOT a research paper. It is instead a chance to showcase what you have learned in the class by applying counseling techniques to a hypothetical client. A vignette will be posted at the beginning of the class, and you will be able to work on your paper as the class progresses. Guidelines for the paper will also be posted at this time.
- Reaction papers. Throughout the class, certain subjects/techniques/ideas will likely pique your interest. You may strong feelings or questions about a topic, regarding its applicability in the counseling setting or how you feel that it may apply to you. When this happens, I would encourage you to write a 3 page (minimum), double spaced reaction paper on the topic, which you will then send to me. It will not be shared with any of your peers, and will remain confidential. You will be required to write four of these papers during the semester, and the due dates for each of these will be outlined in the syllabus below, though you are ALWAYS welcome to turn them in early! These papers do not need to be formally written- instead, I want your gut reaction or thoughts to something that you have been reading/learning about from the class.
